

Curriculum Materials Center

Only the two most recent years available

Allons-y: A supplement to French instruction for beginners, with activities and lessons that reflect national standards for foreign language teaching to help build reading and grammar skills. Published monthly by Scholastic for grades 7-12.

Boy's Life: Boys Life offers information about the scouting movement as well as sports, clubs, games, and stories of outdoor fun. For ages 8-18. Published monthly by the Boy Scouts of America.

Calliope: Exploring World History: Combines information on people and events of the past and present with stories, time lines, maps and historical photos. Follows the National History Standards. Published by Cobblestone & Cricket for ages 8-15.

Career World: Your Guide to Career Paths: Offers current information on career choices, college planning, and vocational/ technical training opportunities. Teacher's Guide included. Published by Weekly Reader for grades 7-12.

Children's Magazine Guide: A subject index to children's magazines and web sites. Published monthly by R.R. Bowker; and indexing 50 popular children's magazines. For ages 10-14.

Cobblestone: Meets the National Standards for History/Social Science. Primary sources, timelines, and maps provide information about significant people and events in American history. Published by Cobblestone & Cricket for ages 8-15.

Cricket: Original fiction and nonfiction stories, poems, folk and fairy tales for the reading curriculum. Letters, recipes, and crafts are included to foster an appreciation for writing and art. Published by Cobblestone & Cricket for ages 9-14.

Crinkles: (Because Learning Makes Crinkles in the Brain). A teaching tool to develop critical thinking, independent research and study habits for ages 7-12. Each issue has reading and activities that interact with the text. Published by Cobblestone & Cricket.

Current Health 1: (Grades 4-7)

Current Health 2: (Grades 7-12) Introduces health related topics relevant to students through the use of current news. Teacher's guide links issues to state and National Health Education standards. Published by Weekly Reader.

DynaMath: Engaging activities help students apply math skills through fiction and nonfiction based exercises. Real life math concepts motivate and sharpen math learning skills in grades 3-6. Published by Scholastic.

Faces: People, Places and Cultures. Discusses multicultural issues including national and ethnic groups, global issues, and biographies of international figures. Uses colorful photographs, time lines, activities and contests to stimulate students ages 9-14. Published by Cobblestone & Cricket.

Highlights for Children: Fun with a purpose. Encourages creativity, basic skills and knowledge through factual articles, short stories, jokes, riddles and drawings for ages 2-12. Submissions from its subscribers are often published. Published by Highlights for Children.

Humpty Dumpty's: A monthly publication for beginning learners includes stories, poems, puzzles, and activities for ages 4 to 6. Designed to help kids have fun while experiencing creative ways to exercise, eat right, and play safely. Published by Children's Better Health Institute.

Jack & Jill: Illustrated stories, crafts, jokes, riddles and facts for health and science related curriculum. Appropriate for students ages 7-10. Published by Children's Better Health Institute.

Junior Scholastic: Published bi-weekly for grades 6-8. Offers background on current events, controversial news topics and lesson plans to supplement the social studies curriculum. Teacher's guide included.

Ladybug: The magazine for young children: Bright illustrations and stories inspire the imagination of children ages 2-6. Promotes reading and motor skills. Published monthly by Cobblestone & Cricket.

Let's Find Out: Lesson plans, correlated to national standards, provide a curriculum for language arts, science, and social studies to build early literacy skills. Published by Scholastic for preschool and kindergarten.

National Geographic Kids: Provides information on natural history, science, geographic awareness and the importance of caring for our planet for ages 8-14. Published by the National Geographic Society.

Plays, the drama magazine for young people: A source for drama curriculum that includes plays for holidays, special occasions, comedies and skits arranged by age level. Provides instructions for costumes, props and set design for ages 6-17. Published by Plays, Inc.

¿Que Tal?: A Spanish language magazine focusing on high-interest topics such as celebrities, movies, music, sports and more. It also includes ready-to-use lessons that reflect national standards for foreign language teaching. Published by Scholastic for grades 7-12.

Ranger Rick: Explore natural habitats through articles, riddles, homework help, quizzes, poems and games. Builds nonfiction reading skills and conceptual science understanding in ages 6-12. Published by the National Wildlife Federation.

Read: Reading supplement for high school English classes. Each issue contains short stories, plays, word games and puzzles, and ideas for student writing. Teacher's guide included. Published by Weekly reader.

Scholastic Art: Hands-on workshops along with activities about contemporary and classical artists provide help for a balanced art curriculum. Teacher's guides are included for grades 4-6 and 7-12. Published by Scholastic.

Scholastic News: Nonfiction teaching program based on curriculum centered seasonal themes for grades 1-6. Maps, posters, and reproducible activities help build literacy skills. Published by Scholastic.

Science World: Feature articles and hands-on activities cover all areas of the science curriculum meeting the National Science Standards. Includes teacher's guide for grades 6-10. Published by Scholastic.

Spider: The magazine for children: Fun-filled activities and fascinating multicultural tales to encourage beginning readers ages 6 to 9. Also includes games, puzzles, projects and activities. Published by Cobblestone & Cricket.

Sports Illustrated for kids: Articles about professional and amateur sports, posters, challenging trivia, and highlights from recent issues of Sports Illustrated magazine provide help to improve reading skills for ages 8-16. Published by Sports Illustrated for Kids.

The New York Times: Upfront: News magazine for teens helps teachers connect current events to their social studies and English curriculum. Builds critical-thinking and data-interpretation skills. Published by Scholastic.

Your Big Backyard: An award winning nature magazine designed for children ages 3-6. Contains colorful photos, nature activities and stories. Published by the National Wildlife Federation.

pm
April 2009