

Research Travel Incentive Program

This program assists faculty with travel costs associated with research, particularly when presenting the results of scholarly work at professional meetings. RTI funds are aimed at supplementing funds provided through other programs on campus. Faculty members wishing to apply submit a one-page abstract detailing the need for travel, how it relates to an established research agenda, and the expected outcomes of the travel. The application is reviewed by the department chair and the dean for approval. The dean forwards the paperwork, with a recommendation for a funding level not to exceed $500, to the Office of the Provost.
