It's becoming more and more common for faculty to use Blackboard in their courses, and many of us have gone from posting course material to using this tool in more pervasive and interactive ways. In addition, some of us use Blackboard to teach entire courses on line.

This workshop will explore what that has been like for us, with the aim of opening up new possibilities for teachers and promoting discussion of how we can use Blackboard to enrich our students' experience as well as our own.

Thursday April 14, 2016
