

S'19 WGSD Colloquium Lecture Series Presents:

Dr. Gwendolyn Pough is Dean's Professor of the Humanities & Chair of the Women's & Gender Studies Department at Syracuse University, author & a proud of alumni of William Paterson University

"Complicate Like Cardi: Hip-Hop & Feminism in this Political Movement"

This talk examines the current political movement in the US & explores whether or not hip-hop feminism is still a valid & reasonable enterprise. How do contemporary mainstream women rappers such as Nicki Minaj and Cardi B complicate our understandings of hip-hop & feminism? What does critique of race, class, gender & sexuality look like in a Trump era where hip-hop reigns in popular culture but white supremacy is on the rise just about everywhere else?

April 2, 2019 - 11 am

Atrium Auditorium

Sponsored by: Sophomore & Junior Experience, Women's & Gender Studies, Africana World Studies, CHSS, Anthropology, English, Geography & Urban Studies, History, Languages & Cultures, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, & Sociology Departments & Diversity & Justice