INK, PRESS, REPEAT 2016
NATIONAL JURIED PRINTMAKING AND BOOK ART EXHIBITION
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It is truly gratifying to present the 2016 Ink, Press, Repeat: National Juried Printmaking and Book Art Exhibition, a recurring initiative that has flourished since its inception in 2001. In those fifteen years, the exhibition has expanded in scope from a regional to a national showcase and drawn increasing interest and attention. Forty-eight artists hailing from sixteen states present sixty artworks in this year’s vibrant and dynamic iteration. We are grateful for the participating artists who invested significant creativity in the artworks on view here.

In recent years, we have invited jurors from different realms of the printmaking field, including print curators, dealers, scholars, and publishers. This year, we were delighted to engage master printer Phil Sanders as the 2016 exhibition juror. We value his deep expertise in technique, as well as the seasoned perspective gained from his tenure at the prestigious Robert Blackburn Printmaking Workshop.

Gallery Manager Emily Johnsen spearheaded and adeptly coordinated this exhibition and publication from start to finish. Visual Resources Curator Heidi Rempel provided project support and valuable editing assistance. We are highly fortunate to collaborate with award-winning graphic designer Professor Thomas Uhlein on the conception and production of this publication.

I extend special gratitude to numerous individuals at William Paterson University for their encouragement and support of the University Galleries, including Dr. Kathleen Waldron, President; Dr. Warren Sandmann, Provost and Senior Vice President of Academic Affairs; Dr. Stephen Hahn, Associate Provost and Associate Vice President of Academic Affairs; Daryl J. Moore, Dean of the College of Arts and Communication; and Loretta McLaughlin-Vignier, Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Communication.

Finally, we are grateful for continuing support from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, a Partner Agency of the National Endowment for the Arts.

JUROR’S STATEMENT

Printmaking as a medium can be thought of as the offspring of sculpture and drawing. Its three-dimensional mindset of combining and recombining parts and physicality of gouging, scraping, and burnishing a surface reflect its sculptural heritage, whereas its two-dimensional output and autographic nature directly mirror the lineage of drawing and painting. Printmaking diverges sharply from its parents with the ability to replicate itself. Editioning is not a requirement of printmaking, it is a possibility, a byproduct of the process allowing for the amplification of the artist’s voice and a more lasting legacy.

The diversity of works in this exhibition demonstrates that contemporary printmakers are embracing the medium for its unique qualities and have not thrown away old techniques as new tools and processes are developed. Rather, they add new tools to an ever-expanding toolbox, combining traditional and contemporary ideas to engage the viewer in conversation with the work.

The title of this exhibition, Ink, Press, Repeat, is not just how an individual work is made, it is a call to carry on the tradition of sharing one’s thoughts and ideas with others. The guiding force behind selection was artistic mastery of craft allowing process to be a supporting detail not a defining element: works of art that happen to be prints. These artists have taken advantage of the unique qualities in printmaking, propelling the medium forward. They are tied together by each artist’s individual commitment to be true to their own voice and desire to communicate it with precision.
