Course description: A course for non-art majors addressing selected issues in the visual arts. Emphasis is placed on visual literacy, teaching students how to speak, write, and think about art. Course content may address a variety of historical periods and visual media, including painting, sculpture, architecture, graphic arts, photography, and film. *Please note: this class involves a minimum of one museum or gallery visit.

Course Objectives:

- To engage students in active viewing and critical discussion about visual media, using both the vocabulary and concepts of the discipline.
- To introduce students to basic themes in the study of human artistic production and reception.
- To teach students to speak and write clearly and eloquently on any topic, using the visual arts as a means to that end.

This course is conducted online, utilizing Blackboard, so you MUST be familiar with the basics of that application. You must also regularly check your WPU email accounts, as that will be the primary means of communication.

This class will be asynchronous, meaning that you will complete assignments at your own pace and upload them by the given deadlines. Specific due-dates and times are listed below.

Required Textbook:

The text for this class will be available at the website boundless.com. Boundless is a site that offers free (or inexpensive) pdfs of certain standard readings. Please sign up for a free boundless account to gain access to those required readings.

The text is called Boundless Alternative to Gardner's Art Through the Ages: The Western Perspective, 4th Edition.

This link will take you straight to the text:

If you prefer a print text, you can purchase any basic survey of Western Art history. Just be sure that you read the chapters with content that matches the assignments on Boundless. (For example, Fred S. Kleiner, ed. Gardner's Art Through the Ages: A Concise History of Western Art, 3rd Edition (Boston, MA: Wadsworth, 2014). ISBN: 978-1-133-95479-8.)
